

Public Consultation

Strengthening Australia's legislative response to modern slavery in supply chains

Privacy Collection Notice and Consent Form

The Attorney-General's Department (the department) is collecting some of your personal information to support consultation on options for change to strengthen Australia's legislative response to modern slavery in supply chains. The privacy and security of your personal information is important to us and protected by law.

The department adheres to the Privacy Act 1988, including the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs). The APPs set out standards, rights and obligations for how we handle and maintain people's personal information. This includes how we collect, store, use, disclose, quality assure and secure personal information, as well as your rights to access or correct your personal information.

How your personal information will be collected

- If you participate in the consultation by completing the online questionnaire or providing a written submission, you do not need to provide any personal information. If you do, this will be on a voluntary basis.
- If you email the department, the department will have a record of your email address, and if you choose to provide it, your name.
- You may choose to provide personal or sensitive information as part of your feedback or submission to the consultation. If you do, this will be on a voluntary basis.
- If you participate in the consultation, the department may collect your email address for the purpose of providing an invitation to a workshop, as well as your name, if you choose to provide it. You may participate in workshops using a pseudonym.

If we don't collect your personal information

If we don't collect your personal information, it may affect our ability to contact you to clarify any aspect of the feedback you provide in the consultation. It may also affect our ability to get in touch with you to invite you to participate in a workshop.

If you choose not to provide your name or use a pseudonym, we may not be able to provide you access to information or records that you provide us as part of this public consultation.

How your personal information will be used

- We may use your personal information to consult with you, including to invite you to participate in workshops.
- We may use your personal information to contact you if we have questions about your feedback, or would like to gain further information.
- If you provide consent to publish your written submission or feedback on our website, we will remove any identifying information, unless we have your consent to share it.
- If you include personal information in a written submission and provide consent to publish that submission, then your personal information may be published.
- If you provide personal or sensitive information about a third party, we will not publish this without the consent of the third party, even if you have provided your consent for your submission to be published.
- We will deidentify personal information in any reports, submissions or summaries ahead of sharing with other government agencies involved in the work to strengthen Australia's legislative response to modern slavery in supply chains. This includes personal information of third parties.
- We will seek your consent to use your personal information for any secondary purpose that is not outlined in this notice.
- The department uses artificial intelligence (AI) to support its functions and services consistent with the requirements of the Privacy Act and in accordance with our Privacy Policy. Further information about our use of AI is available in our AI Transparency Statement.

Who your personal information may be disclosed to

- If you include personal information in a written submission and provide consent to publish that submission, then your personal information may be published. For example, if you put your name on the title page of the submission or include personal information in the text of your submission.
- If you participate in a workshop, in-person or online, your name may be visible to other participants during the consultation.
 - For workshops with an online component, the department will use Microsoft Teams to host the consultation. Microsoft Teams collects personal information for the purpose of hosting meetings from its virtual platform, and has its own policy in relation to the handling of your personal information. Their privacy statement is available on their website.
- You may use a pseudonym when participating in consultations if you do not wish to share your name.
- If you disclose information that leads us to consider you, or someone else, may be at risk of harm, we may be required to disclose this information to police and/or other relevant authorities.

- We may also be required to disclose your personal information to meet mandatory reporting requirements or to report a suspected crime.
- Your personal information may also be subject to Freedom of Information requests.

If we identify any other reasons we need to disclose your personal information, we will seek your written consent before doing so.

Further information

The department's Privacy Policy explains how the department handles and protects the information provided by you. Our Privacy Policy also explains how you can request access to or correct the personal information we hold about you, and who to contact if you have a privacy enquiry or complaint. If you require a hard copy of our Privacy Policy, please contact the Privacy Officer at privacy@ag.gov.au.

If you have any questions regarding participation in the public consultation on strengthening Australia's legislative response to modern slavery in supply chains, please contact Slavery.Reform@ag.gov.au.